REMARKS ORDERED PRINTED

On motion of Senator Schwertner and by unanimous consent, the remarks by Senators Schwertner, Perry, and Birdwell regarding CSSB 1995 on final passage were ordered reduced to writing and printed in the Senate Journal as follows:

President: Senator Schwertner, for what purpose?

Senator Schwertner: To ask a question of the author.

President: Do you yield?

Senator Birdwell: Yes, Mr. President.

Senator Schwertner: Thank you. Senator, I was just reflecting on, on the bill and the structure that's been changed now through your amendments to have a nominated individual, as confirmed by the Senate. The impartiality of that individual, when forcing market participation and, and judging, essentially, through his, through his or her division, the anti-competitive nature of rules and regulations that have been, been suggested by a certain board, one of the 38 boards, that is an extreme. We are concentrating power in that one individual regarding very, sometimes, complex and, and controversial, and, and obviously, a lot of strife between competing interests at times. How are we assuring through your bill the impartiality? How can they be kept, that individual, from influences, outside influences when making their judgments into the, in that division? Are we, do we have any prohibition versus lobbying of that individual in your bill? Is there, during decision-making, decision-making of a certain department or certain rule, is that something that you might be amenable to as this bill goes through the process? I am greatly concerned that we are, again, concentrating what has historically been a, a board or agency decision into essentially one individual through their, well, you can say the Governor, whoever the Governor might be in the future and his appointee, so two individuals, really, that would be making the call for a whole bunch of decisions that are controversial with a lot of different nuances. Do we have any, anything in your bill that will prevent undue influence by outside associations and interests during that rulemaking, during that review process of, of certain market participation decisions?

Senator Birdwell: The very first amendment that we adopted, after we—

Senator Schwertner: The, the long one—

Senator Birdwell: —suspended—

Senator Schwertner: —I was, I was, yeah.

Senator Birdwell: —the long one is the one that says this individual can have no association and no business before any of the 38 boards that he would, he or she, would review rules that deal with market participation. I want to express something else if I may, Senator. I don't take this lightly. I understand and recognize your concern, and it's the concern that I struggled with for a year to figure out the best place to put this. Ultimately, because the Legislature is not here 18 months out of a two-year period, the state still has to function, and those boards and commissions still have to function. We don't give up the ability to tighten any of those boards and commissions. But I want to make it very clear that I didn't just stroll into this flippantly and just pick the Governor's office with a blindfold and a dartboard.

Senator Schwertner: I'm not implying that, Sir. I don't mean that.

Senator Birdwell: I very, I very carefully looked at how we did this. I looked at various options and even if this individual chooses to, to affirm or promulgate a decision, the party that was looking for the decision to be affirmed or promulgated or rejected still has the ability to go to state court and go through the judicial process of appeal. So, the judicial avenue is still there, and the Legislature still maintains authority to correct, adjust, modify anything that a board or commission is doing and certainly with the two-thirds vote out of both bodies, the Governor doesn't get the opportunity to veto that.

Senator Schwertner: The district court avenue, I don't know how often that is. I know there are certain cases, certainly, before—

Senator Birdwell: Right, it is not often but it is there.

Senator Schwertner: Yeah, I wonder if it's going to be more or less regarding, regarding the changes that we're making here today. So, again, just to be completely clear, that individual, this division only has to, has the authority under this bill, and this is for legislative intent, to address issues regarding market participation and anti-competitive actions by a board or agency. They have no other authority in this bill or in this statute to take other actions, review all rules and regulations of every board and every agency in the state or those 38, those 38 agencies. It is only regarding anti-competitive market participant actions that have to be reviewed because of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

Senator Birdwell: On these 38 boards, affirmative.

Senator Schwertner: That is the purpose of your bill.

Senator Birdwell: That is the purpose.

Senator Schwertner: And the legislative intent.

Senator Birdwell: Yes, Sir.

Senator Schwertner: Thank you, Sir.

Senator Birdwell: Thank you, Senator.

Senator Perry: Mr. President.

President: Senator Perry, for what purpose?

Senator Perry: Ask a question to the author.

President: Do you yield?

Senator Birdwell: Yes, Mr. President.

Senator Perry: Just, just clearly, so, I'm kind of following up and getting kind of in the behind here, but, so, the antitrust that this bill seeks to address, our AG has that. I know that you went through that whole scenario with Senator Watson and kind of was one of those first choice decisions and move forward, but I would envision, and I guess I'm asking this, would this individual rely on our AG in those antitrust matters if they in their purview said this doesn't smell right, doesn't look right, could be a problem? Do you envision that going to the AG, are they going to have expanded scope to, to pursue investigation? Kind of to follow up with what Senator Schwertner said, so what is, what does that look like in your bill, and what's your intent to—

Senator Birdwell: I, I envision that this individual would have the Attorney General's office as a resource, the same as I did in helping develop the body of this legislation.

Senator Perry: So, the technical expertise with federal antitrust, and state now, has some roles in those issues, didn't change. You would expect, it is your legislative intent that your expectation, this is not going to be a nearer, a bigger bureaucracy, a guy with a lot of tools and access and tool chest to expand like an OIG role, Office of the Inspector General or any of those, that's not what this is doing? They're going to see it, make a process to where they're going to give that back over to the AG where it properly belongs.

Senator Birdwell: No, I don't, there, I don't think I understand that question. We're not giving the Attorney—

Senator Perry: So, so the question I have is—

Senator Birdwell: —General, we're not giving the Attorney General final authority to make the decision. The division makes the decision. The individual that the Governor appoints and the Senate confirms makes the decision, but the Attorney General's office will be an advice and consent if there's any question in this individual's mind about what state statute says. And it only applies to the 38 boards, and it only applies to decisions those 38 boards make regarding competitive or market participation or any competitive rules and regulations, exactly as Senator Schwertner said.

Senator Perry: So, you just kind of answered one of my concerns, I guess. You do see this as a pretty broad expansion and expertise level. This is not going to be somebody you just pull in from a street as a typical appointment may be. This is going to be somebody that has to have a pretty highly technical background and, and effectively a, a mini-AG on this issue. So, I would have envisioned this individual going to these 38 boards and saying, you've got a problem, we think you have a problem in these fact cases, but here we're going to turn that over to the AG to investigate. But you're not saying that's going to be the case at all.

Senator Birdwell: No.

Senator Perry: Alright.

Senator Birdwell: Not at all.

Senator Perry: Well, I thank you for that answer.

Senator Birdwell: Thank you, Senator.
