STATEMENT REGARDING SENATE BILL 1

Senator Hinojosa submitted the following statement regarding SB 1:

The freedom to vote is enshrined in American democracy. Regardless of where a voter resides, from the panhandle to the Rio Grande Valley, El Paso to Beaumont, all Texas voters should have the equal right to vote. Today, I vote against Senate Bill 1 because instead of furthering these principles, this bill places deliberate barriers to voting for Texans. We all stand against any illegal voting, but we must also stand against denying any eligible voter the freedom to vote. Making elections safe and accessible for all is not incongruent with preserving election integrity. Pro-voter ideas like online voter registration, automatic voter registration, and universal mail in balloting are all bipartisan policies that not only increase voter participation, but also increase the accuracy of voter rolls and even save taxpayer money. Sadly, these types of policies are not included in Senate Bill 1. Instead the bill places new barriers to voting practices such as limiting drive-through voting and 24-hour voting, both of which resulted in increased voter turnout and safety. As the demographic makeup of the state has evolved, the new barriers in Senate Bill 1 will make it harder to vote for Latino and Black citizens from low-income households in heavily populated urban areas. These groups tend to work longer hours during the daytime and hold multiple jobs, making it more difficult for them to take time off from work to vote. Texans deserve to have elections that are fair. Independent studies such as the Cost of Voting Index, already ranks voting laws in Texas as the most restrictive in the country. The narrative that produced legislation like Senate Bill 1 diminishes the faith of the electorate in the voting process and contributes to the false narrative that the results of our elections are not legitimate. Our focus should be on legislation that ensures all Texas voters have fair, free, and equal access to the ballot box moving forward. I will always stand for increasing access to the ballot box in a fair and safe manner so that the voices of all Texans can be heard. Unfortunately, Senate Bill 1 seeks to silence some of those voices.

HINOJOSA

Senator Zaffirini submitted the following statement regarding SB 1:

I rise respectfully in the strongest possible opposition to Senate Bill 1. Some of the most heated debates in the Texas Legislature throughout the years have centered on voting. In addition to being a sacrosanct right of all Texans, voting also is an intensely political issue. We've seen this in the House Democrats breaking quorum to keep this bill from passing. We've seen it in proponents' determination to pass it at all costs. During three rounds of hearings in State Affairs and two floor debates, I've heard Senator Hughes say many times that the object of this bill ostensibly is to—and I quote—"make it easier to vote and harder to cheat." Although provisions of this bill would make voting easier for some Texans, it simultaneously would make it harder for historically disenfranchised communities of color to participate in elections. SB 1, for example, would expand the minimum number of early voting hours in some counties, but it also would establish the first maximum number of hours for early voting since we authorized it 30 years ago. Proponents of the bill will argue this change is not problematic—that it reduces the number of early voting hours in only four counties. Approximately one of three Black Texans, one of three Latino Texans, and one of three Asian Texans, however, live in one of these four counties. Irrespective of the motives of the bill's author or the members who vote for it, if SB 1 is passed, it will result in communities of color having fewer opportunities to vote. We should instead be taking action to make it easier for all Texans to have a voice in our political process. If we truly wanted to make it easier to vote, we would join the 40 other states that allow online voter registration. Although Texas allows online voter registration when drivers' licenses are renewed online, that wasn't achieved through legislation, but rather mandated by a court order. If we truly wanted to make it easier to vote, we would make voter registration automatic when eligible voters renew their drivers' licenses or change their addresses. If we truly wanted to make it easier to vote, we would make Election Day a state holiday. These are only a few of the actions we could take if we truly wanted to make it easier to vote. This bill would not. Instead, SB 1 would outlaw drive-through voting, make it harder to vote by mail by creating new requirements, and restrict the distribution of mail-in ballot applications. It's not a mistake that many of these provisions are aimed at Harris County, our biggest and most diverse county. Persons of color voted in record numbers in Harris County in 2020, and they've become a target in this legislation. And the "make it harder to cheat" part? No one has shown that there is widespread fraud or widespread cheating in Texas elections. The Attorney General's representatives said earlier this year there were 44 voting fraud cases pending—of 11.2 million votes cast in Texas in 2020. As witness Julie Oliver testified before the State Affairs Committee, since 2004 there have been 839 complaints of fraud in Texas—of more than 100 million votes cast. The rushed way this bill moved through the process during this special session also was disappointing. Alex Cogan of the Arc of Texas told our State Affairs Committee that persons with disabilities were shut out of the process because of insufficient notice and not allowing virtual testimony during this COVID surge. "People with disabilities deserve a place at the table," she said, noting that SB 1 will have a detrimental effect on their voting rights. During the hearings, 360 of 475 witnesses said this bill would make it harder to vote, and not necessarily harder to cheat. For these and other reasons, I will vote "no" on Senate Bill 1. Thank you, Mr. President and members.
