

SENATE JOURNAL

EIGHTY-EIGHTH LEGISLATURE — REGULAR SESSION

AUSTIN, TEXAS

PROCEEDINGS

FORTY-FIFTH DAY
(Tuesday, May 2, 2023)

The Senate met at 11:04 a.m. pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by the President.

The roll was called and the following Senators were present: Alvarado, Bettencourt, Birdwell, Blanco, Campbell, Creighton, Eckhardt, Flores, Gutierrez, Hall, Hancock, Hinojosa, Huffman, Hughes, Johnson, King, Kolkhorst, LaMantia, Menéndez, Middleton, Miles, Nichols, Parker, Paxton, Perry, Schwertner, Sparks, Springer, West, Whitmire, Zaffirini.

The President announced that a quorum of the Senate was present.

Pastor Gary Thornton, University Avenue Church of Christ, Austin, offered the invocation as follows:

Almighty God, king of all kings and governor of all things, we ask that You grant wisdom and grace to each and every Member of these our decision-makers, whom we have carefully chosen to serve as the Texas Senate. In this age of constant squabbles and bickering, deliver them from such littleness and grant appreciation, humility, and the desire to serve the citizens of this great State of Texas. Father, this is our prayer on this day of new beginnings. And I pray in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. Amen.

Senator Whitmire moved that the reading of the Journal of the proceedings of the previous day be dispensed with and the Journal be approved as printed.

The motion prevailed without objection.

Floor Amendment No. 1

Amend SB 2453 (senate committee report) by adding the following appropriately numbered SECTION to the bill and renumbering subsequent SECTIONS of the bill accordingly:

SECTION _____. Section 388.003, Health and Safety Code, is amended by amending Subsections (a), (b), and (b-2) and adding Subsections (a-1) and (a-2) to read as follows:

(a) To achieve energy conservation in single-family residential construction, the energy efficiency chapter of the International Residential Code, as it existed on May 1, 2001, is adopted as the energy code in this state for single-family residential construction. On September 1, 2016, the energy efficiency chapter of the International Residential Code, as it existed on May 1, 2015, is adopted as the energy code in this state for single-family residential construction. On or after September 1, 2021, the State Energy Conservation Office may adopt and substitute for that energy code the latest published edition of the energy efficiency chapter of the International Residential Code, based on written findings on the stringency of the chapter submitted by the laboratory under Subsection (b-3). The office:

(1) may not amend or adopt an edition under this subsection more often than once every six years; ~~and~~

(2) by rule shall establish an effective date for an adopted edition that is not earlier than nine months after the date of adoption; and

(3) may amend an adopted edition.

(a-1) Before amending or adopting an edition of the energy efficiency chapter of the International Residential Code under Subsection (a), the State Energy Conservation Office shall conduct an analysis that:

(1) measures the impact of the amendment or adoption on housing attainability in this state; and

(2) quantifies the incremental construction cost and energy use cost savings associated with construction to evaluate the cost-effectiveness of the proposed amendment or adoption.

(a-2) The analysis under Subsection (a-1)(2) must calculate the payback period for any required products or minimum standards or requirements that are more stringent than the energy code in effect on the date immediately before the date the amendment or adoption would take effect.

(b) To achieve energy conservation in all other residential, commercial, and industrial construction, the International Energy Conservation Code as it existed on May 1, 2001, is adopted as the energy code for use in this state for all other residential, commercial, and industrial construction. The State Energy Conservation Office may adopt and substitute for that energy code the latest published edition of the International Energy Conservation Code, based on written findings on the stringency of the edition submitted by the laboratory under Subsection (b-3). The office:

(1) by rule shall establish an effective date for an adopted edition that is not earlier than nine months after the date of adoption; and

(2) may amend an adopted edition.

(b-2) The State Energy Conservation Office by rule shall establish a procedure for persons who have an interest in the amendment or adoption of energy codes under Subsection (a) or (b) to have an opportunity to comment on the codes under consideration. The office shall consider persons who have an interest in adoption of those codes to include:

- (1) commercial and residential builders, architects, and engineers;
- (2) municipal, county, and other local government authorities;
- (3) environmental groups; and
- (4) manufacturers of building materials and products.

SENATE BILL 1896 ON SECOND READING

Senator Birdwell moved to suspend the regular order of business to take up for consideration CSSB 1896 at this time on its second reading:

CSSB 1896, Relating to the investigation of the death of a prisoner in county jail.

The motion prevailed.

Senators Eckhardt, Johnson, and West asked to be recorded as voting "Nay" on suspension of the regular order of business.

The bill was read second time and was passed to engrossment by a viva voce vote.

All Members are deemed to have voted "Yea" on the passage to engrossment except as follows:

Nays: Eckhardt, Johnson, West.

COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE
SENATE BILL 1896 ON THIRD READING

Senator Birdwell moved that Senate Rule 7.18 and the Constitutional Rule requiring bills to be read on three several days be suspended and that CSSB 1896 be placed on its third reading and final passage.

The motion prevailed by the following vote: Yeas 28, Nays 3.

Yeas: Alvarado, Bettencourt, Birdwell, Blanco, Campbell, Creighton, Flores, Gutierrez, Hall, Hancock, Hinojosa, Huffman, Hughes, King, Kolkhorst, LaMantia, Menéndez, Middleton, Miles, Nichols, Parker, Paxton, Perry, Schwertner, Sparks, Springer, Whitmire, Zaffirini.

Nays: Eckhardt, Johnson, West.

The bill was read third time and was passed by the following vote: Yeas 28, Nays 3. (Same as previous roll call)

COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE SENATE BILL 1072 ON THIRD READING

Senator Hughes moved to suspend the regular order of business to take up for consideration CSSB 1072 at this time on its third reading and final passage:

CSSB 1072, Relating to local school health advisory councils and instruction regarding human sexuality, sexual orientation, and gender identity provided by public schools.

The motion prevailed by the following vote: Yeas 19, Nays 12.

Yeas: Bettencourt, Birdwell, Campbell, Creighton, Flores, Hall, Hancock, Huffman, Hughes, King, Kolkhorst, Middleton, Nichols, Parker, Paxton, Perry, Schwertner, Sparks, Springer.

Nays: Alvarado, Blanco, Eckhardt, Gutierrez, Hinojosa, Johnson, LaMantia, Menéndez, Miles, West, Whitmire, Zaffirini.

The bill was read third time and was passed by the following vote: Yeas 19, Nays 12. (Same as previous roll call)

STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT

Senator Hughes submitted the following statement of legislative intent for CSSB 1072:

SB 1072 by Senator Bryan Hughes Relating to School Health Advisory Councils Closing Remarks

Mr. President and Members, thank you for considering SB 1072 relating to school health advisory councils and human sexuality instruction.

The Senate and House passed legislation last session (HB 1525, Section 7) that reformed the way public schools review and adopt curriculum related to human sexuality instruction. The goal of this legislation was to ensure that parents are involved in the curriculum review process and that they can exercise their rights to guide a child's instruction in this area.

Public schools may disregard these parental rights over sex education curriculum by having events or commentary on human sexuality and calling such things "extracurricular." SB 1072 remedies such situations by requiring a public school to adopt a policy regarding school employee discussions of human sexuality with a student outside of a class dedicated to human sexuality instruction. Also, the bill requires a public school to adopt a policy on when extracurricular events related to human sexuality may be held.

The bill also authorizes the Attorney General or county or district attorney to bring a cause of action against a public school that is violating the provisions of Section 28.004, Education Code, relating to local school health advisory councils and health education.

Finally, the bill includes language the Senate passed in SB 8 stating that a public school may not provide or allow a third party to provide any instruction or other programming related to sexual orientation or gender identity.

Examples of Issues the Bill Addresses

Let me give several examples of issues the bill would address. First, Fort Worth ISD apparently did not go through the legal process to review and purchase its sex education curriculum, HealthSmart. Under Section 28.004 of the Education Code, a sex education curriculum has to be reviewed and recommended by the School Health Advisory Council before it can be adopted by the school board. Public meetings and parental input are secured under the statute at each step along the way. This process was not followed in Fort Worth.

In addition, schools may use noncompliant curriculum for human sexuality instruction. Dallas ISD, for example, uses sex education curriculum from McGraw-Hill. This curriculum violates the requirements of state law by not presenting abstinence as the preferred choice of behavior for all unmarried persons of school age; devoting more attention to abstinence than to any other behavior; and emphasizing that abstinence is the only way to ensure avoidance of pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases, among other things (Section 28.004(e) of the Education Code).

Also, as mentioned previously, schools may host extracurricular events related to human sexuality that are not subject to the parental notification procedures and curriculum review processes of state law. In March 2022, Austin ISD held a "Pride Week" in which the district provided a variety of instructional materials related to human sexuality. This came after the Legislature passed a law (HB 1525) clearly stating that parents must consent in writing before a school may provide human sexuality instruction to a student.

Students apparently were encouraged to keep information from parents. According to the Austin American Statesman, one of the rules for engaging in a "community circle" is to "Respect Privacy: What we say in this room stays in this room." (AAS, March 23, 2022) This was guidance provided to prekindergarten through second graders.

The district responded by trying to argue that the event was not curricular. The Attorney General sent a letter stating the event violated state law but had no recourse in his office. He only could point parents toward the school board, which already had violated parental rights, or a long and tortuous grievance process through TEA.

By authorizing the Attorney General or district or county attorney to bring a cause of action related to Section 28.004 of the Education Code, SB 1072 provides an enforcement mechanism to make sure that parental rights are respected and curriculum is subject to public review.

Prohibition on Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity

The prohibition on sexual orientation and gender identity instruction in SB 1072 is not about attacking any group. It is about protecting children from an aggressive agenda that has never been about sex education in the traditional sense but is about indoctrination and social change.

As I will recount in some detail, sexual orientation and gender identity are being pushed on children from their first days in school through their high school years. We are forcing on children who are learning their ABCs sexual concepts that cannot be explained by the adults who originated them, the so-called sexual experts. How do we expect a 7-year old or a 17-year old to comprehend a sexual world that has no boundaries, that approves of anything that can be consented to, that endorses identities that shift from day to day.

This is not education. This is not science. This is not giving a heart, mind, and soul firm anchors of knowledge and self-discipline to hold a life together. We are stealing ordering principles from children that they naturally understand before they are old enough to know they have been robbed.

State Board of Education did not include sexual orientation or gender identity in the Health TEKS

For these reasons, our own State Board of Education did not include sexual orientation and gender identity in the 2020 revision of the Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills for Health. The State Board was not trying to exclude anyone. All students, regardless of their sexual orientation or gender identity would be covered by the various strands of the Health TEKS: physical health and hygiene; mental health and wellness; healthy eating and physical activity; injury and violence prevention and safety; alcohol, tobacco, and other drugs; and reproductive and sexual health.

This is about protecting kids

This is not a debate about the rightness or wrongness of sexual orientation or gender identity. This is about protecting children from a radically aggressive agenda that they are not mature enough to resist.

If that theme sounds familiar, it is. This body has been confronting this agenda on a variety of fronts this session. We have passed SB 12 to protect them from sexually-explicit performances. We have passed SB 13 to protect them from obscene material in school libraries. We have passed SB 14 to protect them from life-altering surgeries. We have passed SB 15 to require college athletes to compete on the basis of biological sex.

Sexual orientation and gender identity are an ideology

A healthy democratic society is based on free speech that exposes error and points people toward the truth. Ideology defies rational analysis.

A strong scientific community is one that uses rigorous, ethical research to protect and affirm the dignity of the human being. Ideology intimidates and coopts those who should be the purveyors of knowledge.

Sexual orientation and gender identity is not sex education. It is ideology. It masks an extreme intolerance in the language of diversity. It defies rational criticism and subjugates science. It is our responsibility as legislators for our state to give children the space to be children. To not be ambushed by an ideological movement that would steal their innocence and push them off the path of what we have known for centuries to be normal development.

National Sex Education Standards and Austin ISD

National Sex Education Standards

The National Sex Education Standards, or NSES, is a good place to begin our review of the sexual orientation and gender identity movement. The name "National Sex Education Standards" sounds official, like it might be something issued by the government. That's not the case, however. These standards were drafted by a group of organizations united in using sex education as a means for radical social change: Advocates for Youth; SIECUS (Sexuality Information and Education Council of the United States); Human Rights Campaign, and Gender Spectrum, among others. You will not find any diversity of opinion here among this group of organizations that talk about diversity so much.

Their report states that 41 percent of school districts in the country have adopted NSES guidelines. Austin ISD, a district we will spend some more time on, looks to the National Sex Education Standards for guidance.

Here is a sample of some of the introductory guidance:

NSES: "As detailed below, the updated NSES have been written with a trauma-informed lens; have been infused with principles of reproductive justice, racial justice, social justice, and equity; address social determinants of health and how these can lead to inequitable health outcomes; and take an intersectional approach" (8).

NSES: "Sex education should avoid cisnormative, heteronormative approaches, aim to strengthen young people's capacity to challenge harmful stereotypes, and be inclusive of a wide range of viewpoints and populations without stigmatizing any group" (11).

What about the heteronormative group? They don't seem to be welcome.

NSES: "All adolescents have a right to comprehensive, developmentally and culturally appropriate, confidential support and sexual health services. And, if pregnant, young people have the right to comprehensive pregnancy options, counseling, and all related services. The updated NSES have thoughtfully taken into consideration that young people—including young people who are pregnant or parenting—should have decision-making power in their reproductive health and their decision to determine if, when, and under what circumstances they do or do not want to parent. Within this, the updated NSES seek to educate users on the institutional and structural barriers that hinder or complicate sexual and reproductive health decisions" (11).

There is no mention of marriage here. I wonder if that is one of the "institutional barriers" they are talking about. No mention of parents either.

Prominent critical race theorist Kimberle Crenshaw is referenced.

NSES: "Intersectionality. In addition, the NSES takes an intersectional approach, reflecting the theory conceptualized by Kimberlé Crenshaw, JD, LL.M. Intersectionality describes the way overlapping or intersecting social identities—and particularly minority identities—relate to systems and structures of discrimination" (11).

NSES: "Language Inclusivity. Language is constantly evolving; new terms are introduced, while others fade from use or change their meaning over time. This remains true for the terms and definitions included in the NSES. Similarly, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, and sexual identity are often evolving and changing during adolescence. The developmental process for young people often involves experimenting with many different identities, forms of expression, and behaviors, and sexual identity is not exempt from this type of exploration. As sexual development continues to progress, most youth will eventually identify themselves with a gender identity and a sexual orientation, though some may not" (11).

NSES: "No one else is qualified to label or judge another person's sexual identity, including their sexual orientation or gender identity, and it is important that the language and terms young people use to identify themselves is respected by the adults in their lives. Adults, including educators and administrators, should respect and use the pronouns each student uses for themselves" (11).

The Actual Standards

As for the standards themselves:

NSES: "By the end of second grade, students should be able to define gender, gender identity, and gender-role stereotypes. They should be able to discuss the range of ways people express their gender and how gender-role stereotypes may limit behavior" (19).

NSES: "By the end of fifth grade, students should be able to describe "the potential role of hormone blockers on young people who identify as transgender." "Distinguish between sex assigned at birth and gender identity and explain how they may or may not differ." "Define and explain differences between cisgender, transgender, gender nonbinary, gender expansive, and gender identity." "Explain that gender expression and gender identity exist along a spectrum." "Described gender role stereotypes and their potential impact on self and others" (21).

Here is something that sounds like traditional sex education.

NSES: "By the end of the eighth grade, students should be able to: Analyze how peers, family, and a person's intersecting identities can influence attitudes, beliefs, and expectations about gender, gender identity, gender roles, and gender expression" (25).

NSES: "Access medically accurate sources of information about gender, gender identity, and gender expression" (25).

NSES: "Define sexual identity and explain a range of identities related to sexual orientation (e.g., heterosexual, bisexual, lesbian, gay, queer, two-spirit, asexual, pansexual)" (26).

NSES: "List at least four methods of contraception that are available without a prescription" (26).

Why without a prescription?

NSES: "Describe pregnancy testing, the signs of pregnancy, and pregnancy options, including parenting, abortion, and adoption" (27).

Summary of National Sex Education Standards

This movement has become so aggressive that its core message has been introduced by the 8th grade. You might assume that more mature themes would wait until high school, but you would be mistaken. The standards for high school in the NSES are essentially an elaboration on what children have been exposed to by junior high.

Let's see how this applies to one of our major school districts: Austin ISD.

Austin ISD Sex Education Curriculum

Kindergarten and First Grade

In the kindergarten curriculum, the teacher is instructed to take on the mantle of parental approval. The teacher tells the students, "Today we are beginning a new unit called Human Sexuality and the Body. . .your parents trust us to keep you safe! Your parents trust me to teach you about your body and to answer your questions."

Transgender messaging begins right away.

"Most of the time, girls are born with [a particular anatomy]. . .On the other hand, boys are mostly born with [a particular anatomy]." (Kindergarten)

"The part of the body that a baby human grows in is called a uterus. . .Bodies that have uteruses are usually girls." (First Grade)

Second Grade

The teacher uses similar language related to parental endorsement: "Your parents trust me to teach you about your body and to answer your questions."

Transgender and sexual orientation messaging continues:

The teacher reads or shows a video of the book What Makes A Baby: A Book For Every Kind Of Family And Every Kind Of Kid.

What strikes you as the book begins is the use of androgynous figures and language. The book reads, "Not all bodies have sperm in them. Some do, and some do not." The book continues, "When grown ups want to make a baby, they need to get one egg from one body and sperm from another body. Just like eggs and just like sperm, some bodies have a uterus and some bodies do not."

There is one point of certainly in the book: "Everybody that has a uterus has it in the same place, just below the belly button, in the squishy middle part."

Then we finally get to a page with discernible male and female figures. The figures are discernible because the author wants to show same-sex couples with a child or expecting a child. Then the book goes back to androgynous figures.

After reading the book, the lesson plan gives the following guidance to the teacher: "It is ok if you want to share if your body has a uterus and eggs or makes sperm, or if it used to but doesn't any longer [emphasis added], or something else that is brief. . .It might also be helpful to explain to students that most girls are born in a body that has eggs and a uterus, but not all girls, and that most boys are born in a body that will make sperm when they get older, but not all boys."

Fifth Grade

By fifth grade, children are learning about hormone blockers for "young people who identify as transgender."

"Some people are attracted to people of the opposite gender, some people are attracted to people of the same gender, some people are attracted to all genders. All feelings are personal and unique and deserve respect."

7th and 8th Grade

A lesson for junior high age kids gives the following note to teachers:

"Understandings of gender are evolving rapidly, and today's youth are part of a generation that view the complexity of gender as a fact of life. This lesson on anatomy and puberty will use gender-inclusive language and you are encouraged to do the same. Gender-inclusive anatomy and puberty education benefits all youth because it recognizes and affirms all students. What this looks like: When discussing puberty processes, use terms such as "can", "may", or "might" to avoid excluding certain students such as those who are intersex, transgender, or gender non-conforming. . . It can be helpful to explain to students that being a boy, a girl, or in-between is mostly about how someone feels, not their body parts [emphasis added]. When talking about sexual feelings, it's important to not be specific about the gender that people might be attracted to. This lets you include anyone who could be or become attracted to boys, girls, non-binary genders, or more than one of these. Again, it's good to use "can", "may" or "might" when you talk about people developing romantic and/or sexual feelings."

"People are assigned a sex at birth based on their reproductive anatomy. Sex assigned at birth is independent of gender identity. Gender identity is a person's internal sense of identity as female, male, both or neither, regardless of their biological sex assigned at birth."

High school

A sex education lesson for high schoolers includes this guidance for teachers:

"An important note about language: Language is complex, evolving and powerful. In this lesson, inclusive language is used to be inclusive of all students, including those with diverse gender identities, gender expressions and sexual orientations. This includes the use of 'they' as a singular gender-neutral pronoun. A person's sex can be male, female or intersex (not clearly defined as either male or female). Sex is independent of gender identity. Gender identity is a person's internal sense of identity as female, male, both or neither, regardless of their sex assigned at birth. For many people, their gender matches the sex they were assigned at birth (cisgender). For others, their gender identity does not match the sex they were assigned at birth. They may use terms like transgender, trans, non-binary, gender fluid, gender queer, agender or others, to describe their gender identity. The umbrella term 'trans' is primarily used here, to describe people whose gender identity and sex assigned at birth differ. While this umbrella term does not fit everyone, the intention is to be inclusive as possible. In this lesson, you will notice that body parts and processes are not labelled as male or female. While it is ok to use the terms boy/girl/male/female, it is important not to assume that all boys or girls have certain anatomy. This approach is more inclusive of intersex and gender diverse people. (teachingsexualhealth.ca)"

"Explain that sex can mean many different things to many different people. There's not one universal definition of sex but a variety of perspectives. Sex has a history of being defined somewhat narrowly, centering on traditional cultural and religious norms, heterosexual practices, and 'what makes a baby'. This means it has been focused on [heterosexual] intercourse. . . A more inclusive definition could describe lots of different activities performed by people with a diversity of gender identities and sexual orientations."

Additional Resources Recommended by Austin ISD

Beginning with the second grade sex education lesson, Austin ISD refers parents to several other resources, including Sex Positive Families and Amaze. Both websites have animated characters that appeal to children. Amaze.org is particularly enticing. The entire homepage is comprised of cartoon-like characters and videos featuring children. The topics, however, are "What is asexuality;" "Sextortion: online coercion and blackmail;" and "How do birth control pills work?," among others.

Sex Positive Families provides pamphlets on sexual behaviors of children. For children birth to four years of age, recommended resources include the book Love Makes a Family, featuring same sex couples throughout. Another book for this age range is entitled These are My Eyes, This is My Nose, This is My [female anatomy], These are My Toes. For ages five to eight, What Makes a Baby Cry (discussed above) is recommended, along with It Feels Good to Be Yourself: A Book About Gender Identity. The book Trans+: Love, Sex, Romance, and Being You is recommended for teens.

Melissa Carnagey is the Founder of this organization. In an article published by Jezebel, she bemoans the fact that sex education is being treated as nonessential during COVID. She states, "As schools adjust to online learning, sex education is frequently being considered separately from core essentials like reading, math, and history."

One of Carnagey's fellow sex educators, Lincoln Mondy of Advocates for Youth, laments inconsistent sex education laws across the country and says "a lot of kids are getting really harmful abstinence-only education or nothing at all."

Carnagey wasn't worried about kids being exposed to pornography with all their extra screen time during the pandemic. "Porn is out there," she said. "Porn is not really the enemy. What is problematic is parents not talking to kids about porn." The article goes on to encourage "parents to 'initiate the conversation about porn with your child'" and continues, "Being curious about sex and looking at pictures or films of naked bodies, or people engaging in sexual behaviors, is perfectly normal, but you have to remember that porn contains some misleading images."

So pornography is OK if you talk to your parents about it. Looking at pornography is "perfectly normal", it's just that porn contains some "misleading images."

When I read these excerpts from the Austin ISD sex education curriculum and recommended resources, one word comes to mind: chaos. Instead of guiding our children into adulthood, we are leading them into a darkness that most of them would naturally avoid. The problem here is not the kids. The problem is us, the adults. We should be arming children with the virtues that strengthen the soul and give ordered meaning to life. Instead, we are enslaving them to a pernicious materialism that so completely reduces them to the desire of the moment that they use the pronoun "they" not to describe a group of people but to describe themselves, the multiple individual selves that contend for their mind and divide their hearts.

Conclusion

Mr. President and Members, this legislation supports a health curriculum in our state that focuses on our areas of agreement—on providing health instruction that is age-appropriate, maintaining parental control over sex education, and protecting children from concepts and themes that are beyond the comprehension of their young minds and hearts.

There are strong academic, psychological, familial, and civic reasons to keep sexual orientation and gender identity sex education out of public schools. Sexual orientation and gender identity sex education is not sound academics but its antonym. It rejects every form of restraint and discipline that accompanies established academic disciplines that have proven their durability through critique, testing, and evaluation.

The psychological arguments against this agenda are just as potent. Children are not equipped to handle concepts that go beyond life-altering to life-threatening. It robs a child of basic reference points that the child himself would retain if not hindered by the adult that should be protecting rather than harming.

Also, sensitive topics such as this are best left to parents. Parents entrust their kids to public schools and find the school has thrown the child into confusion by introducing themes the child is not ready to comprehend.

Finally, there is a civic argument for keeping sexual orientation and gender identity out of public schools. These are public schools, funded with your tax dollars and mine. Sexual orientation and gender identity sex education is more a statement of faith than sound science. It is customary to exclude religion from public schools, but ideologies like this are welcomed.

Let's focus on the areas where we can agree in education. We all can agree on the importance of Math and English and Social Studies. We can agree on a coherent reproductive and sexual health strand as adopted by the State Board of Education.

This is not a debate about the rightness or wrongness of sexual orientation or gender identity. This is about protecting children from a radically aggressive agenda that they are not mature enough to resist.

There is one academic referenced in the "Guiding Principles and Values Section" of the National Sex Education Standards. Is it a renowned biologist? Is it a leading developmental psychologist? No, it is the prominent critical race theorist, Dr. Kimberle Crenshaw. That the one academic referenced in this section is a critical race theorist speaks volumes about the purpose of the National Sex Education Standards.

Crenshaw is highlighted because the National Sex Education Standards is an ideological rather than a public health document. Moreover, Crenshaw is mentioned because critical race theory and the National Sex Education Standards are both branches of the same ideological tree. They are both derived from a Marxist materialism that reduces human beings to some aspect of their material existence.

For critical race theory, that feature is of course race. Race is the defining feature of life, and if that is not apparent enough, critical race theory provides a framework to promote racial division. Teach your children that one race is inherently superior to another. Teach your children that an individual is inherently racist because of their race. Teach your children that an individual should be discriminated against because of the individual's race. These principles are why we passed legislation to keep critical race theory out of Texas public schools. People said critical race theory is not in our public schools, but it is there in a variety of ways, one of which is the National Sex Education Standards, which is informing curriculum for many school districts in our state.

The defining feature of existence is race for the critical race theorist, and it is sexual identity for the National Sex Education Standards. These standards seek to expose children to adult information about sexual activity. Even more damaging is the sexual orientation and gender identity component that has a corrosive effect on a child's nascent ability to understand themselves in relation to the world. We are exposing them to activity that harms their soul and body and removing from them their earliest frames of reference that they would naturally acquire if left to themselves.

Consider Austin ISD's Pride Week as an example of this emphasis on sexual identity. First of all, does Austin ISD celebrate anything else for a whole week? Does it celebrate academic success? Athletic victories? If you look at the posts for Pride Week, you see that schools are wholly taken over by this occasion. The structure of the school day, decorations in the hall, and activities of the students are all organized around this emphasis on sexual orientation and gender identity. What kind of impression do you think this makes on a 7-year old? That child is answering all the questions we just asked and coming away from that occasion thinking this is the most important thing in the school year.

Other schools in Texas are taking up Pride Week such as Yes Prep Northline in Houston that sets aside a gender fluid day for students, encouraging them to come to school dressed as the opposite gender.

As human beings, we are made in God's image and are of infinite worth. We are defined by the many different features of our existence. Education pertains to understanding those features in conjunction with each other rather than the extreme isolation of one characteristic. It also pertains to the proper sequence and time to discuss various academic topics.

On both scores—the proper integration of various features of human life and the proper time to introduce those topics—the sexual orientation and gender identity agenda fails. It is not education but the advancement of an ideology bent on social change.

First assumptions matter. We are not a nation founded on Marxist materialism but on natural rights endowed by God: life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The Marxist begins with a grievance that must be nursed. The American begins with gratitude for freedoms that are naturally endowed. For the Marxist, freedom comes from control of some aspect of material existence. For the American, freedom comes from God. The First Amendment of the Marxist Constitution begins with the material world. The First Amendment of the American Constitution begins with the freedom of the conscience and the soul.

Throughout our Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills, we have made a commitment to teach our children the fundamental principles of American democracy. To do that, we must keep our health education limited to principles that build them up rather than tear them down. SB 1072 takes an important step in that direction, and I ask for your favorable consideration.

HUGHES

SENATE BILL 2527 ON SECOND READING

On motion of Senator Campbell and by unanimous consent, the regular order of business was suspended to take up for consideration CSSB 2527 at this time on its second reading:

CSSB 2527, Relating to the regulation of telemedicine medical services, teledentistry services, and telehealth services; providing a civil penalty.

The bill was read second time.

Senator Campbell offered the following amendment to the bill:

Floor Amendment No. 1

Amend CSSB 2527 (senate committee printing) in SECTION 2 of the bill as follows:

(1) Strike the recital (page 1, lines 33-34) and substitute the following:

SECTION 2. Section 111.002, Occupations Code, is amended by amending Subsection (a) and adding Subsection (a-1) to read as follows:

(2) Strike added Section 111.002(a)(2)(A), Occupations Code (page 1, lines 48-49), substitute the following, and reletter subsequent paragraphs of the subdivision accordingly:

(A) subject to Paragraph (B), is given notice of and the opportunity to attend the initial appointment or meeting with the minor patient;

(B) if the treatment includes the prescription of a controlled substance, is present at the initial appointment or meeting with the minor patient; and

(3) Immediately following amended Section 111.002(a), Occupations Code (page 1, between lines 51 and 52), insert the following:

(a-1) Subsection (a)(2) does not apply with respect to the provision of treatment or counseling to a patient who is a child in accordance with Section 32.003 or 32.004, Family Code, as applicable.

The amendment to CSSB 2527 was read and was adopted by a viva voce vote.

All Members are deemed to have voted "Yea" on the adoption of Floor Amendment No. 1.

Senator Campbell offered the following amendment to the bill:

Floor Amendment No. 2

Amend CSSB 2527 (senate committee printing) as follows:

(1) In SECTION 4 of the bill, strike amended Section 111.005(a)(3)(C), Occupations Code (page 2, lines 35-41), and substitute the following:

(C) another form of audiovisual telecommunication technology that allows the practitioner to comply with the standard of care described in Section 111.007.

(2) Strike the recital to SECTION 5 of the bill (page 2, lines 55-56) and substitute the following:

SECTION 5. Chapter 111, Occupations Code, is amended by adding Sections 111.0052 and 111.0055 to read as follows:

Sec. 111.0052. RECORDS OF CERTAIN TELEMEDICINE MEDICAL SERVICES AND TELEHEALTH SERVICES. (a) A health professional who provides telemedicine medical services or telehealth services to a patient as described by Section 111.005(a)(3) shall:

(1) maintain a record of each telemedicine medical service or telehealth service provided to a patient by the health professional until the seventh anniversary of the date the service is provided; and

(2) produce a record described by Subdivision (1) on request of the state licensing agency with regulatory authority over the health professional that is conducting a regulatory investigation or disciplinary action.

(b) A health professional may designate as custodian of records described by Subsection (a)(1) a designated agent in this state for any business entity through which the professional provided telemedicine medical services or telehealth services to the patient. A health professional who designates a custodian under this subsection may maintain a complete copy of the records of each of the patients to whom the professional provides telemedicine medical services or telehealth services as described by Section 111.005(a)(3).

(3) Add the following appropriately numbered SECTION to the bill and renumber subsequent SECTIONS of the bill accordingly:

SECTION ____ . Chapter 111, Occupations Code, is amended by adding Section 111.0025 to read as follows:

Sec. 111.0025. SCOPE OF PRACTICE NOT EXPANDED. (a) A health professional who provides telemedicine medical services or telehealth services to a patient as described by Section 111.005(a)(3) may provide only services within the health professional's scope of practice.

(b) This chapter does not change the scope of practice of any profession.

The amendment to CSSB 2527 was read and was adopted by a viva voce vote.

All Members are deemed to have voted "Yea" on the adoption of Floor Amendment No. 2.

Senator Campbell offered the following amendment to the bill:

Floor Amendment No. 3

Amend CSSB 2527 (senate committee printing) in SECTION 9 of the bill as follows:

(1) Strike Section 111.011(c), Occupations Code (page 4, lines 15-22), and substitute the following:

(c) Any person may bring a civil action against a person who violates Subsection (a). If a claimant prevails in an action under this subsection, the court shall award injunctive relief sufficient to prevent the defendant from violating Subsection (a).
